If your results in forcing azalea indica are not allways perfect, READ THIS.

UPON ARRIVAL: Unpack at once and loosen the crowns. Shake plant and remove all leaves that are likely to fall of.

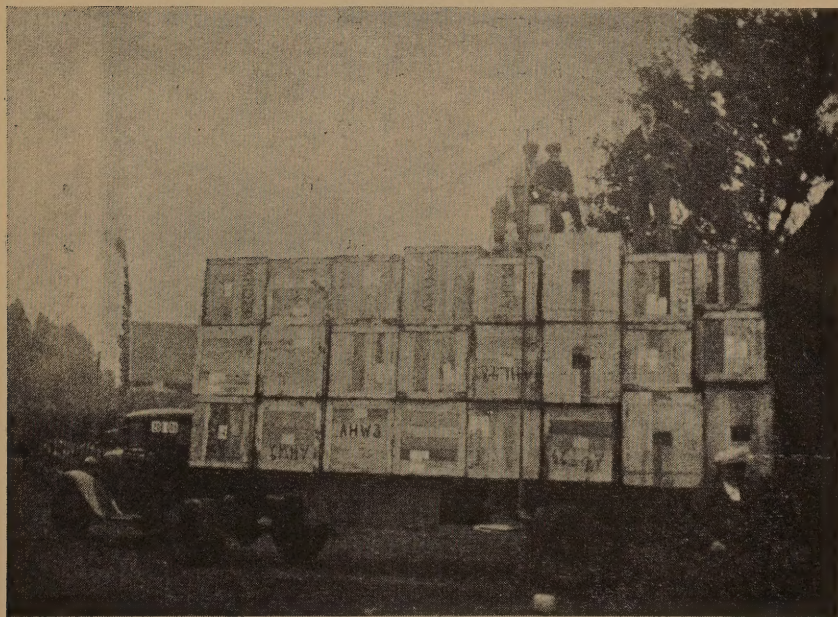

The ball must be soaked in a tub of water untill thoroughly wet. Light leaf-mould without manure is used for potting. Early and late flowering varieties must be kept separte.

Keep azalea in cool clean greenhouses or frames, leaving a small space between every plant, give plenty of airing and water regulary.

FORCING: For Christmas flowering November 15 th. is a good dat here to start forcing. The first three weeks a temperature of 70° Farenheit should be kept without much variation. During that time water often, spraying the buds and leaves in the morning. Water should have greenhouse temperature.

Young shoots should be carefully taken away as soon as they appear. When removing the plants shake the dirty leaves ont and clean tables.

Watch carefully for insects. When flowers begin to show colour heat can be reduced to 60° Farenheit and a few days later to 50° Farenheit. This way flowers will be large and deep colouring, will be easier to transport and last longer, than it would be the case if they open up in 70° Farenheit.
